LOYOLA'S NOWALKOSKI APPOINTED TRAINER OF CFL ALL-STARS

Loyola College's Head Athletic Trainer Ed Nowalkoski has been appointed to a similar position with the CFL All-Stars, who are scheduled to play the defending Grey Cup champions, the Montreal Alouettes, at the Autostade on Tuesday, June 29th, at 8:00 P.M.

The All-Stars will train at Loyola for a week prior to the game, and Nowalkoski will be on hand for treatment of injuries and physiotherapy services.

Nowalkoski, a native of Thunder Bay, Ontario, has been trainer at Loyola since May of 1967. A former football player himself, Nowalkoski was recently elected vice-president of the newly-formed Quebec Athletic Trainers Federation.

Prior to his arrival at Loyola, Nowalkoski was a physical training instructor in the R.C.A.F. for six years. Well-known in the sports medicine field, having had some articles published, his areas of concentration are rehabilitative therapy and fitness programs.

He is consulted by many local high school and junior football teams on knee problems. In addition to his training area, he works on design-improvement of sports equipment with Canadian manufacturers, notably on Hockey helmets, shin pads and goalersface masks.

Nowalkoski attended the New York Giants football camp for the past four years, where he worked with their medical staff. A member of the Canadian Trainers Association and the National Trainers Association, Nowalkoski will be the Trainer and Strength Coach at Vaughan McVay's Montreal Football Summer School, slated for Macdonald College from July 5 through July 17. Following this school, Nowalkoski will go to Cali, Columbia as Head Trainer of the Canadian team in the PanAm Games, held the last two weeks of July and the first week in August.

Married with three daughters, aged 10, nine and three, Nowalkoski now makes his home in St. Jean, Quebec.
